1. Nelson Grilley.

Nelson Grilley, or as sometimes called Anathan Nelson Grilley, was born in 1811, in New York State. As a boy he drove a horse on the Erie Canal tow-path. The monotony of the work caused him to run away from home. He married Sarah Anderson, parents unknown, and made his home in Lisbon, Columbian County, Ohio, where they lived until about 1842. Three children were born to Nelson and Sarah.

2. Norris - born April 29, 1837

When Norris was in his fifth year, the family moved back to New York, living at Camden, Onida County. When Norris and Henry became young men, they preceeded their parents to Vernon County, Wisconsin. They built a log house and Nelson, Sarah and Harriet came the next year. Albert L. Grilley, eldest son of Norris, was born in this log house, and Maud J. Grilley, his eldest child, also has this distinction. Nelson Grilley died in 1884 and is buried in Millard's Prairie cemetary. Sarah (Anderson) Grilley died in 1884, and is buried in the Millard's Prairie Cemetary. Elroy, Wisconsin

A History of the Grilley Family 1811 - - 1957

There is a tradition in the Grilley family , a tradition which has been handed d own from father to son, that two brothers were kidnapped from the coast of Wales and brought to this country. One was drowned in the river where the ship was anchored, and we descend from the survivor. Until futher research brings more lig ht on the fir st Grilley to come to America, we will ha ve to accept this as tradition only.

The history of the Grilley family from Nelson, who migrated to Wisconsin before 1860 but after 1850, as census records from Wisconsin prove, is made up of letters from the children and grandchildr e n of Norris Grilley.

Letter from Maud Grilley July 17, 1957

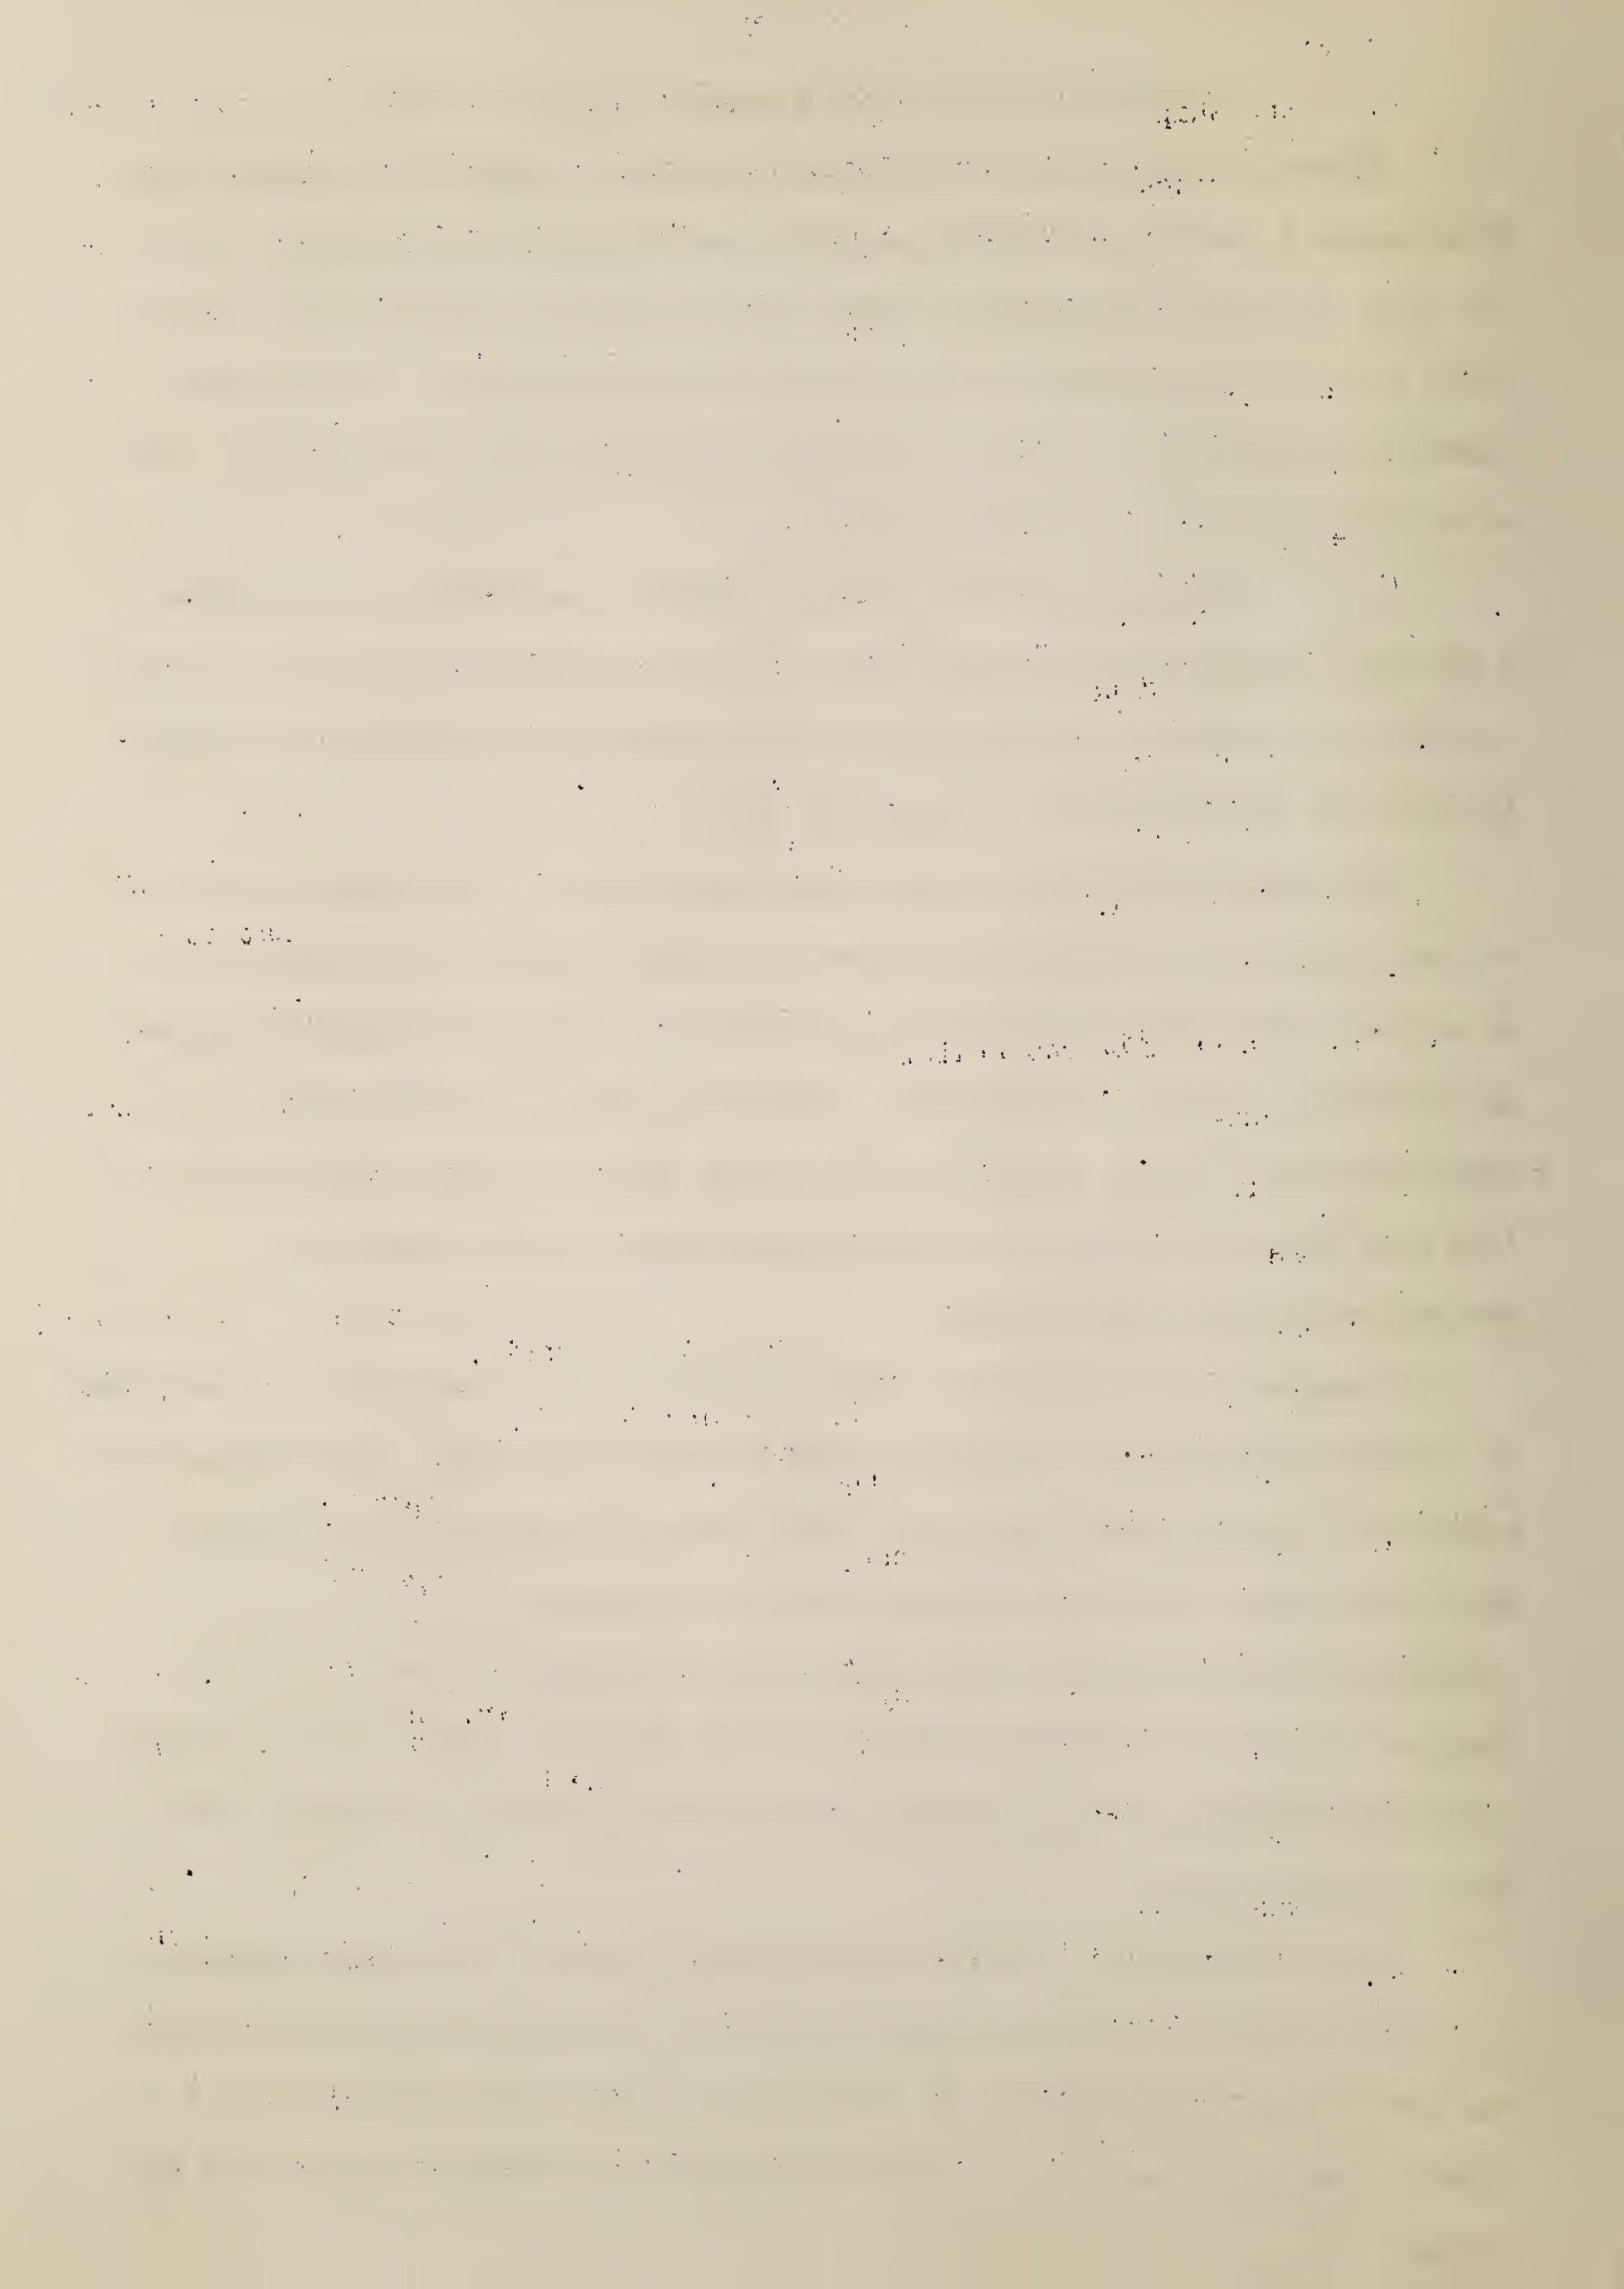

I've heard Dad tell that his Grandfather drove a horse along the bank of a canal, hitched to a boat, it was the Erie Canal, I think. They railroa ded to a place called Elby, near Portage, Wisconsin. G reat Grandfather's name began with an A. Anathan, as Dad had a double knit wrist of a mitten that his mother knit with A.N.G. on it. It got so badly eaten by moths, that It's gone. I've seen it so I am sure. Our G reat Grandparents on both sides are buried down on Millards Prairie.

(In answer to the question , which grandfather was first buried on the farm) It was ~~Great~~ Grandfa ther Teed. He passed on before there was a graveyard, a nd before Dad was born. Dad and G rea t Uncle George Teed took him up. I don't doub t but Dad was the first Grilley born in Wisconsin.

(Regarding the locations of the Grilley and Teed farms)

They were farther towards Elroy than our farm. They were close together. Teed's in Glendale Township, Monroe County, and the Grilley farm in Hillsboro Town-ship in Vernon County.

Dad and Ma lived on the old Grilley farm one year, then bought up where we always lived. It was in Hillsboro Township. The kids were all born there but me. Great Grandfather Grilley had a flag on his grave each Memorial Day. I think he was in the Mexican War. Dad always saw to it that the flag was on his grave.

Grandpa and Uncle Hank must have been young men when they came up from the Portage country, as they came ahead and built the log cabin that Dad and I were born in.

Letter from Lula Grilley Wiseman      dated Aug. 5, 1957

I was born in Fairpoint, Minnesota, and Clarence was born near Fairpoint. The rest were born near Skyburg, which was our postoffice. It seems to me that Grandpa Grilley's name was Nelson. I'm sure it was.

Letter from Lorinda Grilley Griggs      dated Aug. 4, 1957

I remember the pioneer days in North Dakota. We came out in May, 1900. We came out from Towner in the night. In the morning we could not see a building anywhere in sight, just prairie as far as you could see.

We lived in tents all summer, burned prairie chips for wood. we had four cows and I don't know how many chickens, but had milk, butter and eggs, all we could use. I remember we kids got to tearing around and I ran through the big tent and jumped right into Mother's bread she had setting on the bed with a blanket over it. I got a scolding and it was a great laugh all summer. Dad had brought some lumber along and they built a house. They moved in sometime in the fall.

Dad went threshing that winter over on Deep Creek near where Upham is now. Irving, Martha and I did the chores. Irving hauled straw, he would go one day and back the next. We had to take the stock to water, one-half mile, and pull the water from the well with a bucket. Martha pulled and I emptied for about fourteen head. It was tough. When it got cold, ice would form around the well. We never had a sick day all winter. Now, it seems like a dream.

Letter from Martha Grilley Allen      dated Sept. 23, 1957

On May 8, 1900, mother and we four girls, and Aunt Emma got in Towner, North Dakota in the afternoon. Dad was there to meet us with the horses and buggy. We started out across the prairie following the track Dad made when he came to Towner. This was 45 miles from our new home.

Dad said for us to watch for a lantern burning, which was put upon a high pole to guide us to our new home. We got there about 11:30 p.m.

We lived in tents all summer, until the house was finished in November.

One Sunday a few of us went for a ride to see what we could see. We drove over the prairie and came to a little hill. We drove over it and there was a bunch of Indians. The first thing they did was to pick up their guns. We turned around and drove home.

Letter from Emma Owen Grilley written August, 1957

In the year of 1899, Dad Grilley, my brother Ed Owen, and three or four of our neighbors thought they would go west into North Dakota and see what the new homestead land was like. They each filed on a quarter section, 160 acres, came back and the next spring were moving out. Lester and I thought we'd go too and settle with them.

So the men folks took the household goods, stock and machinery, which took four freight cars, got out there, set up tents, and Ed hauled lumber. We women-folks came by rail a few days later. We, Lester and I, lived with Ed that year, then built our house the next spring.

Lester bought his team, western horses, unbroken, so they were lively. But he tamed them so they would come when he called them, and he always had grain for them. There was plenty of grass so he turned them loose on the prairie.

It seemed quite lonely after living in town for eight years, but soon settlers were pouring in until all the land was taken up, and we had good neighbors.

After the crops were harvested the next summer, Dad Grilley did threshing so our men folk were occupied and that left Martha and me to do all the running to town for supplies. One time Dad G. had ordered some extras for his threshing machine and Martha and I had to go to Towner and pick them up. It was a long drive with the horses, and when we got part way home, the road, not being traveled much, was hard to see. But I said we knew the direction, and as the wind was in our faces we could make it. We stopped at the last house before crossing into our trail and let them know we were going to try it. The man who lived there gave us his lantern and said if we started to go wrong he would fire his rifle and we were to stop. I held the lantern and Martha drove. Soon we were going to the right, or else the wind had changed. Soon I heard some one behind us. We stopped and this man said he fired his gun, but we didn't hear it. We had made quite a circle. We were not far from a better trail but he took the reins and soon we were at Father Grilley's.

In the year of 1905, it was quite dry, so the farmers, most of them, had plowed a few furrows around their places to protect from fire hazards, should the need come. But, there were places where there was no protection, and when we looked to the south-west, towards Minot, we could see smoke. The wind, being in that direction, was coming our way. By evening it was getting pretty close. Of course the men, my husband and my three brothers came home. They fought fire all night until 5 o'clock the next morning. I was so frightened I was unable to sleep, and too, it was so light I could see a pin which I dropped out of doors. Our men-folk were equal to the occasion and soon had the fire out, at least through our country.

After living thru a few blizzards and dirt storms, I find I didn't mind living in Dakota, did not want to leave and go to Northome, Minn. to live in a wooded country.

I know you can adjust yourself to live most anyplace, as there are drawbacks most anywhere,

Letter from Irma Grilley McDonald as told to her by her father Irving Grilley.

dated August 11, 1957

Grandpa's four rented immigrant cars, G.N.R.R., arrived in Towner, May 4, 1900, with four stowaways aboard, Dad, Uncle Clarence, and Jack and Reynold Owen.

Dad remembers their sneaking out and walking up towards town. The first person they met was a big Indian buck, attired in a red blanket. They were a bit frightened and quickly moved out of sight.

The next day they started out, by horses, with part of their property and got lost on the way and had to ford a deep creek. They traveled west and expected to find their homestead on the other side of the hill, only the hill turned out to be the horizon. After some inquiry, they finally found their own land.

After Grandpa filed, he went back to Minnesota for a short time. While he was gone, a prairie fire burned over a large area, which made the ashes blow. One day the ashes blew so badly that it was difficult to eat. Dad remembers putting his dinner in a boiler, then covering it and his head with a blanket while he ate.

One night the big tent, their home that first summer, blew down while the family was asleep. They just <sup>left</sup> things as they were until morning.

Grandpa and Grandma's home was widely known as "the stopping-off place" between Granville and northwest of here. These fellows and their horses were fed and asked to remain over night.

When Grandpa or the boys went to Granville, or or any other far place, a lighted lantern was hung up on a twenty foot pole to be "their guiding light" when returning home after dark.

The first winter they spent in North Dakota, 1900-1901, Dad (Irving) remembers that Grandpa's threshing outfit spent the winter threshing on the ice of the Mouse River, northeast of Upham. A hole was made in the ice from which they got water to run the steam engine. Farmers dug their flax out of the snow and brought it for miles to be threshed. Clement Hague was the post master of the Meadow P.O. near there.

Of course, many times they were caught in blizzards on the way home, only to arrive safely because of the faithful "old dobbins". Some of the cowboys who had been around for sometime, tried to frighten them by telling they might be followed by hundreds of coyotes and wolves at night. One night Dad and Uncle Lester were coming back from Granville with the last of the lumber for Grandpa's house, when they heard these animals howling some distance behind them. Dad took over the driving and Uncle Lester sat with an axe ready to let them "Have" it if they jumped up on the load. They later decided there were probably only about six coyotes.

One of the things that stands out in my memory is waiting by the window at night, when Hollis and I were kids, to hear Dad's "Good-night" whistle from the steam threshing machine.

Letter from Maud Grilley          dated May 19, 1957

Dad (Albert Grilley) said his Grandfather (Nelson) had three brothers, Justin, Jim, and Lester and a sister Anna Eliza Kellar. He also said that there were two little boys stolen from the coast of Wales, one passed on and we are descendants of the remaining one. Uncle Clarence remembers Grandfather telling the same story.

Letter from Maud Grilley          dated Dec. 31, 1937

Grandad's brother Henry has a government stone. (The tombstone was checked by Mrs. Omer Grilley ,1957, it reads Co.I, 8th Wisc. Infantry.)

Letter from Maud Grilley          dated Sept. 15, .952

Grandpa's name was Norris Grilley, and our Grandma's Lucy Teed . They were married by David Moore, in the presence of Nelson and Polly Paine. My dad always lived with his grandparents(Nelson and Sarah Grilley). He was born there while his father was in the Civil War. Nelson Grilley's sister Anna Eliza Kellar had the family Bible, and it seems I've heard Dad say there was a family record. The last I knew they were living at Wray, Colorado.

Letter from Maud Grilley          dated    Aug. 17, 1957

We have a pair of fire tongs made by Jim Grilley, Uncle to our Grand father. Maynard asked for them after Dad was gone, and I brought them out here once when I went home. Ann Sheldon and Cora Burden were at our house and asked to handle them. You know Ann and Cora were Harriet Grilley Osborn's daughters.

I remember Dad telling that when his Grandfather Nelson Grilley wanted to rest, you know they did a lot of hoeing. Those days he would climb up on the top rail of the fence and sit in the sun. His Grandmother Sarah loved dogs. She always had two or three, and where ever she went, they were always at her heels. One of our Grandmothers had something wrong with her hands so she couldn't spin, so, she did the knitting and the other Grandmother did the spinning for both the families. I think it was Grandmother Sarah who did the knitting. Great Grandfather Grilley was Grandpap and Great Grandmother Sarah was Granny. But Grandmother Teed was always Grandma. I've heard Dad tell that one morning before Norris and Henry went to school, they helped their mother saw down a cherry tree. She had it sawed into boards and a stand and a table made. (This must have been in Camden, N.Y. where they would have attended school) Lela has the stand and Clarence probably has the table.

Letter from Lula Grilley Wiseman                      dated 1957

Just a few lines on my life in Minnesota. I was born at Fairpoint, Minn. on August 30. 1878. In the fall of 1881, my parents moved to a 400 acre farm. It was all cattle and grain farming but we did have a lot of wild fruit. I had to walk one and one half miles to school, and we never had more than seven months a year. We lived there for nineteen years and then immigrated to North Dakota. I remember the day we moved to the farm in North Dakota as if it were yesterday.

Letter from Maud Grilley                      dated Sept. 13, 1957

I have found out that Harriet Grilley Osborn's husband's name was Edgar. Did you know our Grandfather was a flag bearer? Dad said that his father carried the flag when they marched through Georgia to the sea.

Letter from Mrs. Clayton Grilley                      on Wauwatosa, Wisconsin                      1957

Grilley, and that he lived in Michigan. She did not know his parents names. Quoting from her letter "Before Grandpa Grilley passed on, he and I would sit and talk about the family, and he gave me the little information that I have. The one most interesting thing that he did tell me, and I'm sure you will find it interesting is, that his family started in this country by two brothers coming here from Wales. However, he told us that the two boys became separated and over the course of years, one brother branched out and the name was changed from Grilley to Greeley and from the new name of Greeley came the famous Horace Grilley "
